Background

1. ANW’s Relationship with Medpoint

Arizona Nature’s Wellness (“ANW”) is an Arizona nonprofit entity which holds an Arizona Department of Health Services-issued Dispensary Certificate (“Certificate”). The Certificate allows ANW to operate the “Bloom”-branded medical marijuana dispensary (“Dispensary”) under the Arizona Medical Marijuana Act (“AMMA”), codified in A.R.S. §§ 36-2801–2819. AMMA requires that all state-registered dispensaries “be operated on a not-for-profit basis,” and that dispensaries’ bylaws “contain such provisions relative to the disposition of revenues and receipts to establish and maintain [their] nonprofit character.” A.R.S. § 36-2806(A). This requirement has resulted in a proliferation of dispensary-management entities which serve as repositories of dispensary revenues, while dispensaries maintain their nonprofit nature.

Medpoint is (or was) such an entity. Medpoint is an Arizona limited liability company with two members, Ask Nice Twice, LLC (“ANT”), and Here Is Now, LLC (“HIN”). ANT is the manager of Medpoint. Yuri Downing (“Downing”) is the 100% owner of both ANT and HIN, and is Medpoint’s statutory agent.

Medpoint formerly managed ANW’s marijuana business, business relationships and cultivation operations. Medpoint first came into contact with ANW when Medpoint purchased a 100% membership interest in Tier Management, LLC (“Tier”) from Petitioning Creditor Mike Danzer (“Danzer”) on January 3, 2013 (“Danzer Sale Agreement”). See Motion at Ex. G: Danzer Sale Agreement (DE 34-7). Medpoint acquired Danzer’s Tier interest because on January 2, 2013, Tier had entered into a Cultivation and Dispensary Services Agreement with ANW (“Tier Service Agreement”). See Motion at Ex. A: Tier Service Agreement (DE 34-1). Medpoint purchased the Tier interest in order to acquire the Tier Service Agreement. See Response at Ex. A:

1 Downing Depo., at 27:25–29:17 (DE 37). ANW needed a management entity to partner
2 with because, for example, ANW had no employees.<sup>4</sup>

3 Under the terms of the Danzer Sale Agreement, Tier, now controlled by 4 Medpoint, continued servicing ANW under the terms of the Tier Service Agreement.
5 See Motion at Ex. G: Danzer Sale Agreement, at ¶¶ 2.1.13, 2.1.15 (DE 34-7). Medpoint, 6 through Tier, continued servicing ANW under the Tier Service Agreement until 7 December 11, 2013, when Medpoint signed a separate Cultivation and Dispensary
8 Services Agreement (“Medpoint Service Agreement”) with ANW. The Medpoint 9 Service Agreement superseded the Tier Service Agreement. See Opposition at Ex. A: 10 Medpoint Service Agreement, at ¶ 29 (DE 48). ANW terminated the Medpoint Service 11 Agreement on May 27, 2014, alleging dissatisfaction with Medpoint’s performance 12 under the Medpoint Service Agreement. This is somewhat puzzling, because ANW was 13 a captive entity under the terms of the Medpoint Service Agreement, which Agreement 14 allowed Medpoint to appoint ANW’s board. Reply at 3:16–20 (DE 42).<sup>5</sup> Medpoint is 15 not currently performing any management services for ANW or any other entity.
16 Motion at ¶ 15 (DE 34). ANW now contracts for dispensary and cultivation 17 management services with Bloom Master Fund I, LLC (“BMF”).<sup>6</sup> Response at Ex. A: 18 Downing Depo., at 57:22–25 (DE 37).<sup>7</sup>

19 2. Medpoint’s Current Assets and Ties to Other Entities

20 Medpoint owns the “Bloom” name and trademark (“IP”) under which ANW sells 21 its marijuana products. See Motion at Ex. B: Trade Name Registration (DE 34-2).
22 Medpoint currently licenses the IP to Bloom IP Industries, LLC (“Bloom Industries”) for 23

24 <sup>4</sup> See note 8, infra.

25 <sup>5</sup> The Court did not find such a provision in either the Medpoint Service Agreement or the Tier Service Agreement.

26 <sup>6</sup> The record contains no hard facts regarding the agreement between ANW and BMF. No written contract between BMF and ANW (if any exists) is attached to any of the pleadings. Downing is a current employee and former member of BMF.

<sup>7</sup> The Court attaches a diagram showing the various entities’ relationships before and after ANW terminated the Medpoint Service Agreement.

1 $8,000 per month. See Motion at Ex. J: IP Licensing Agreement (DE 34-10).<sup>8</sup> This is 2 Medpoint’s only current source of revenue.

3 In addition to the IP and the revenue it generates, Medpoint’s other assets include:
4 (1) its 100% membership interest in Tier; and (2) its causes of action relating to ANW’s
5 alleged wrongful termination of the Medpoint Service Agreement.<sup>9</sup>

6 3. *Petitioning Creditors’ Claims against Medpoint

7 The Petitioning Creditors consist of Danzer, 7511 IRA Investments, LLC 8 (“7511”), Jason Jensen (“Jensen”), and Robert Brown (“Brown”).

9 Danzer’s claims against Medpoint arose from the Danzer Sale Agreement, by 10 which Medpoint bought Danzer’s 100% interest in Tier. Under the terms of the Danzer 11 Sale Agreement, Medpoint paid Danzer $150,000 down, and signed a promissory note 12 for two more payments of $150,000 each. See Motion at Ex. G: Danzer Sale Agreement 13 (DE 34-7). Medpoint defaulted on the Danzer Sale Agreement. See Response at Ex. A: 14 Downing Depo., at 45:25–46:2 (DE 37). Danzer also entered into a Consulting 15 Agreement with Medpoint on January 3, 2013, whereby he would provide services 16 relating to managing construction of a marijuana cultivation facility. See Motion at Ex.
17 F: Danzer Consulting Agreement (DE 34-6). Medpoint never paid Danzer any of the 18 $5,000 monthly fees due under the Consulting Agreement. Response at Ex. A: Downing 19 Depo., at 47:9–48:6 (DE 37).

20 Jensen also signed a Consulting Agreement with Medpoint on January 3, 2013, 21 whereby he would provide project management services relating to the grow house
22 construction. See Motion at Ex. E: Jensen Consulting Agreement (DE 34-5). Medpoint 23

24 <sup>8</sup> Bloom Industries is a wholly-owned subsidiary of BMF, ANW’s current management entity.

25 <sup>9</sup> Infinite Bloom, LLC was previously a wholly-owned Medpoint subsidiary. Medpoint sold Infinite Bloom to 26 BMF for $11,100 on June 2, 2014. See Opposition at Ex. B: Asset Sale Agreement (DE 48). Infinite Bloom employed the 74 employees who performed Medpoint’s management services for ANW. Medpoint sold Infinite Bloom to BMF “so that [BMF] wouldn’t have to switch all the employee contracts and everything else . . . .”
Response at Ex. A: Downing Depo., at 113:2–5 (DE 37).

1 never paid Jensen’s monthly fees under the Consulting Agreement. Response at Ex. A: 2 Downing Depo., at 50:20–51:3 (DE 37). The Consulting Agreement attached to the 3 Motion does not reference medical marijuana, but the Court does not doubt that Jensen 4 was aware of the nature of Medpoint’s business.

5 On August 27, 2013, Robert Brown loaned Medpoint $100,000 (“Brown Loan”).
6 See Motion at Ex. D: Brown Loan (DE 34-4). Medpoint has not repaid the Brown Loan.
7 Response at Ex. A: Downing Depo., at 55:18–20 (DE 37). The first recital of the Brown 8 Loan acknowledges that Medpoint is in the medical marijuana business.

9 On September 9, 2013, 7511 loaned Medpoint $400,000 (“7511 Loan”). See 10 Motion at Ex. C: 7511 Loan (DE 34-3). Medpoint defaulted on the 7511 Loan. 7511 11 claims Medpoint owes it $400,000. The first recital of the 7511 Loan acknowledges that 12 Medpoint is in the medical marijuana business.

13 Issue

14 The issue before this Court is whether it can or should enter an involuntary order 15 for relief against Medpoint despite the fact that Medpoint’s current and former business 16 affairs are illegal under applicable federal criminal statutes. This question appears to be 17 a matter of first impression in the District of Arizona. The Court finds that cause exists 18 under section 707(a) to dismiss the Petition.<sup>10</sup>

19 Medpoint’s Arguments

20 Medpoint argues that a bankruptcy trustee cannot lawfully administer a 21 bankruptcy estate’s marijuana-related assets without violating the CSA. In re Arenas, 22 514 B.R. 887, 891–892 (Bankr. D. Colo. 2014) (“For the Trustee to take possession and 23 control of the Debtors’ Property and marijuana inventory would directly involve him in 24 the commission of federal crimes.”). In Arenas, the court held that the inevitable 25 illegality of the trustee’s administration of illegal estate assets constituted cause to 26 <sup>10</sup> All section numbers refer to Title 11 of the United States Code unless stated otherwise.

1 dismiss under section 707(a). Id. Alternatively, Medpoint cites Northbay for the 2 proposition that the Court must dismiss this case because Petitioning Creditors’ hands 3 are unclean due to their involvement in a medical marijuana enterprise. Northbay
4 Wellness Grp. v. Beyries, 2012 WL 4120409 at *4 (N.D. Cal., Sept. 18, 2012) (affirming 5 that unclean hands doctrine prevented bankruptcy court from granting relief to plaintiff 6 medical marijuana business seeking a nondischargability determination, because it was 7 engaged in activity which was illegal under federal law).

8 Lastly, Medpoint argues that the Court could alternatively suspend all 9 proceedings under section 305(a). Medpoint argues that the conflict between state and 10 federal law makes the bankruptcy court “the most inefficient and troublesome” forum.
11 Motion at 13:11. Medpoint notes that Petitioning Creditors’ claims are grounded in state 12 law. Id. at 13:18.

13 Petitioning Creditors’ Arguments

14 Petitioning Creditors deny that Medpoint is currently engaged in any illegal 15 activity and deny that either the IP or the IP licensing revenues are forfeitable under the 16 CSA. Petitioning Creditors distinguish Medpoint from the marijuana-related parties in 17 the cases Medpoint cites, noting that those cases involved operating dispensaries or 18 growers. Response at 4–6. Petitioning Creditors deny they have unclean hands, arguing 19 that nothing in the record or Motion indicates that their claims “are in any way related to 20 the actual proceeds of the sale of marijuana or ongoing illegal activity.” Id. at 6:19–20.
21 Petitioning Creditors deny that Medpoint used their funds to purchase marijuana or any 22 other illegal substance. Id. at 6:23–24. Petitioning Creditors observe that Medpoint 23 “applied for and received a Federal Tax ID number,” and that Medpoint banked at Wells 24 Fargo, an FDIC-insured bank. Id. at 7:8–11. As to Medpoint’s section 305(a) argument, 25 Petitioning Creditors urge that suspending all proceedings would not be in the best 26 interests of creditors, citing the BAP’s decision of In re Eastman, 188 B.R. 621, 624–

1 625 (9th Cir. BAP 1995) (under section 305(a), “the test is whether both the debtor and 2 the creditors would be ‘better served’ by a dismissal.”).

3 Lastly, Petitioning Creditors argue that even though medical marijuana may be 4 technically illegal, with the passage of the Consolidated and Further Continuing 5 Appropriations Act (“Cromnibus Act”), there can be no federal enforcement actions 6 against Arizona medical marijuana businesses. The Cromnibus Act is significant 7 because it provides funding for the entire federal government through September 30, 8 2015. Section 538 of the Cromnibus Act states: “None of the funds made available in 9 this Act to the Department of Justice may be used, with respect to the state[] of . . .
10 Arizona . . . to prevent [Arizona] from implementing [its] own [law] that authorize[s] the 11 use, distribution, possession, or cultivation of medical marijuana.” Cromnibus Act, Pub.
12 L. 113-235, § 538 (2014).

13 The United States’ Trustee’s Position

14 At the January 29 hearing on the Motion, counsel for the United States Trustee 15 (“UST”) expressed concern and skepticism regarding a trustee’s ability to administer a 16 bankruptcy estate for Medpoint. ECRO audio file of Jan. 29, 2014 hearing (DE 46).
17 Posing a hypothetical to the Court, she asked: “So, you’re going to ask a trustee to look 18 at a management contract for illegal activities, essentially. So what is that trustee going 19 to do?” Counsel for the UST was not convinced that Medpoint had any legal, non-20 marijuana assets that a trustee could lawfully administer. Id. Medpoint affirms that all 21 of its assets are marijuana-related. Memorandum at 4–6 (DE 47).

22 Analysis

23 The Court analyzes three general arguments in reaching its decision on the 24 Motion: (1) whether there is cause to dismiss the Petition; (2) whether Petitioning 25 Creditors have unclean hands, and if they do, whether this Court can or should enter an 26

1 order for relief; and (3) whether Petitioning Creditors acted in bad faith in filing the 2 Petition.

3 1. Cause to Dismiss under Section 707(a)

4 Under section 707(a), the Court may dismiss a chapter 7 case for cause 5 after notice and a hearing. In Arenas, the bankruptcy court found cause to dismiss the 6 debtor’s case because the debtor’s assets included marijuana and marijuana-related 7 assets. In re Arenas, 514 B.R. 887, 892 (Bankr. D. Colo. 2014) (“The impossibility of 8 lawfully administering the Debtors’ bankruptcy estate under chapter 7 constitutes cause 9 for dismissal of the Debtors’ case under 11 U.S.C. § 707(a).”). The Arenas court held 10 that “Debtors’ chapter 7 trustee . . . [could not] take control of the Debtors’ Property 11 without himself violating §856(a)(2) of the CSA,” nor “liquidate the inventory of 12 marijuana plants Mr. Arenas possessed on the Petition Date” without violating §841(a) 13 of the CSA. Id. at 891. Because the trustee was unable to perform his duties, the court 14 found the bankruptcy case was futile.

15 In Vel Rey, the chapter 7 trustee wanted to operate the debtor’s property to 16 increase its sale value. In re Vel Rey Properties, Inc., 174 B.R. 859 (Bankr. D. D.C.
17 1994). The trustee asked the bankruptcy court for immunity from liability for any 18 noncompliance with D.C.’s housing regulations while he readied the property for sale.
19 Id. at 863. The court denied the trustee’s request, noting that if either the trustee or the 20 United States Trustee refused to serve for “concern[] about personal liability . . . the 21 court could simply dismiss the case for cause under § 707.” Id. at 866 (citing Ohio v.
22 Commercial Oil Serv. Corp., Inc., 58 B.R. 311 (Bankr. N.D. Ohio 1986)).

23 In another District of Colorado bankruptcy case, the debtor-in-possession was a 24 landlord who received approximately 25% of its revenue from a marijuana entity. In re 25 Rent-Rite Super Kegs W. Ltd., 484 B.R. 799, 802–803 (Bankr. D. Colo. 2012). The 26 bankruptcy court found that renting to the marijuana entity exposed debtor to criminal

1 liability and forfeiture of the real property. Id. at 809. Because of the risks associated 2 with the marijuana tenant, the bankruptcy court held that the debtor’s continuing lease 3 with the marijuana entity constituted “gross mismanagement of the estate” and was 4 cause to dismiss under section 1112(b)(4)(B). Id. The Court is strongly persuaded by 5 the reasoning in this line of cases.

6 The Court is also persuaded by the UST’s argument that the appointment of a 7 chapter 7 trustee would place that trustee in an untenable position. A trustee would have 8 good reason to worry about his/her risk exposure relating to the administration of a 9 marijuana-related entity’s estate:

10 Where the Bankruptcy Code has conferred special powers 11 upon the trustee and where there was no common-law 12 limitation on that power, Congress has expressly provided 13 that the efforts of the trustee to marshal and distribute the assets of the estate must yield to governmental interest in public health and safety.

14 Midlantic Nat’l Bank v. New Jersey Dept. of Env’tl. Prot., 474 U.S. 494, 502, 106 S. Ct.
15 755, 760 (1986) (citing Ohio v. Kovacs, 469 U.S. 274, 105 S. Ct. 705, 766–767 (1985)).

16 The first section of the CSA shows that Congress enacted it in its “governmental interest 17 in public health and safety.” In that section, Congress finds and declares: “The illegal 18 importation, manufacture, distribution, and possession and improper use of controlled 19 substances have a substantial and detrimental effect on the health and general welfare of 20 the American people.” CSA, 21 U.S.C. § 801(2) (emphasis added). Marijuana is a 21 schedule-I controlled substance under the CSA. See CSA, 21 U.S.C. § 802(6) (defining 22 a controlled substance to include any drug or substance “included in schedule I . . . of 23 this part B of this subchapter.”); CSA, 21 U.S.C. § 812(c), Schedule I at (c)(17). A 24 bankruptcy trustee would need to yield to the government’s interests in protecting the 25 public’s health, as expressed by the CSA.

1           The Court observes, without deciding, that it is quite possible that Medpoint’s IP 2 and the IP licensing revenues could be seized or forfeited, and that Medpoint could be or 3 could have been guilty of facilitation of a crime under the CSA. See Deputy A.G. James 4 M. Cole, U.S. DOJ, Memorandum at 2 (June 29, 2011) (“Persons who are in the 5 business of cultivating, selling or distributing marijuana, and those who knowingly 6 facilitate such activities, are in violation of the Controlled Substances Act, regardless of 7 state law.”). Both ANW and Medpoint could be or could have been guilty of violating 8 the CSA under an accomplice theory of liability. See 18 U.S.C. § 2(a) (establishing 9 aiding and abetting liability for crimes against the U.S.).

10           The Court finds that the prospects of a possible forfeiture or seizure of 11 Medpoint’s assets poses an unacceptable risk to a chapter 7 estate and to a chapter 7
12 trustee.<sup>11</sup> Other courts have dismissed cases for similar concerns regarding a trustee’s 13 potential risk exposure. See In re Charles George Land Reclamation Trust, 30 B.R. 918, 14 924 (Bankr. D. Mass. 1983) (dismissing a chapter 7 case for cause because neither a 15 trustee nor the United States Trustee would take the case, due to the “potentially 16 unlimited and untested liability standards of both the State and Federal Superfund 17 statutes.”).

18           Petitioning Creditors’ argue that the Cromnibus Act essentially eliminates the risk 19 of federal enforcement actions against medical marijuana operations. This argument aslo 20 fails to sway the Court. That the Cromnibus Act prohibits the Department of Justice 21 (“DOJ”) from using that funding for enforcement against medical marijuana operations 22 does not foreclose the possibility of enforcement. For example, in 2012, the DOJ’s

24 <sup>11</sup> The Court declines to make a finding on the issue of whether Medpoint’s assets (the IP, its licensing revenues, its 25 interest in Tier, and claims against ANW and others) are or are not forfeitable/seizable under the CSA and/or other 26 federal law. However, such an issue could very well be central to a bankruptcy court’s decision in future cases in states which allow the production and sale of “medical marijuana.” The same is true for the issue of the enforceability and seizability/forfeitability of contracts and negotiable instruments. See 21 U.S.C. § 881(a)(6) (providing that “negotiable instruments” used to facilitate any violation of the CSA are subject to forfeiture and that “no property right shall exist in them.”).

1 Asset Forfeiture Program “recorded total net forfeiture deposits of $4.2 billion” via 2 coordinated actions involving the FBI, ATF, DEA, and other law enforcement agencies.
3 Dept. of Justice, Asset Forfeiture Program FY 2014 Performance Budget at 1. The 4 Court cites this as an example of a possible non-Cromnibus Act source of funding for 5 enforcement actions against medical marijuana businesses. The Attorney General can 6 spend money from the DOJ’s Asset Forfeiture Fund “to seize . . . property . . . pursuant 7 to any law enforced or administered by the Department of Justice, or [for] any other 8 necessary expense incident to the seizure . . . of such property . . .” 28 U.S.C. § 9 524(c)(1)(A). The Court takes this to mean that DOJ can use existing forfeiture 10 proceeds to prosecute claims against Medpoint under the CSA (and seek forfeiture of 11 Medpoint’s assets) even though this year’s budget allotment could not be used for such 12 prosecution. The Court also notes that the Cromnibus Act only applies to funding 13 through September 30, 2015. The next spending bill approved by Congress might not 14 prohibit the DOJ from using its general funds to enforce the CSA against Arizona’s 15 medical marijuana businesses.

16 The Court will not enter an order for relief which would then result in the 17 appointed chapter 7 trustee necessarily violating federal law (the CSA) in carrying out 18 his or her duties under the Code. The dual risks of forfeiture of Medpoint’s assets and a 19 trustee’s inevitable violation of the CSA in administration of a Medpoint chapter 7 estate 20 constitute cause for this Court to dismiss Petitioning Creditors’ involuntary Petition 21 under section 707(a). The Court grants Medpoint’s Motion.

22 2. Unclean Hands Doctrine

23 The bankruptcy court is a court of equity. Young v. United States, 535 U.S. 43, 24 50, 122 S. Ct. 1036, 1041 (2002). “The ‘unclean hands’ defense applies to conduct 25 immediately related to the cause in controversy.” In re Everett, 364 B.R. 711, 723 26 (Bankr. D. Ariz. 2007) (citation omitted). “[B]ecause of the clean hands doctrine a 1 federal court should not, in an ordinary case, lend its judicial power to a plaintiff who 2 seeks to invoke that power for the purpose of consummating a transaction in clear 3 violation of law.” See Johnson v. Yellow Cab Transit Co., 321 U.S. 383, 387, 64 S. Ct.

4 622, 624 (1944). “Under the ‘clean hands’ doctrine, one who does not come into equity 5 with clean hands, and keep them clean, must be denied all relief, whatever may have 6 been the merits of his claim.” Hall v. Wright, 240 F.2d 787, 794–95 (9th Cir. 1957).

7       When Medpoint entered into the various agreements with Petitioning Creditors, it 8 was very much in the business of managing and operating a medical marijuana business.
9 Medpoint drained off ANW’s cash so that ANW, a not-for-profit entity, would not hold 10 an inordinate amount of cash. In effect, the profitability of ANW’s business was 11 usurped by Medpoint via the Medpoint Service Agreement and IP License Agreement.
12 Medpoint’s former wholly-owned subsidiary, Infinite Bloom, LLC, employed over 70 13 people to run and manage ANW’s sales and cultivation.<sup>12</sup> Medpoint also hired 14 consultants to help with the construction of a cultivation facility, and branded the 15 cannabis products with the Bloom trademark. Medpoint still licenses that IP to BMF 16 (via Bloom Industries) for ANW’s use. Medpoint’s IP surely provides value to BMF in 17 the sale of ANW’s marijuana products.

18       Petitioning Creditors knew or should have known that Medpoint’s activities were 19 illegal under federal law. Medpoint did not dupe them into entering the medical 20 marijuana business. Danzer, Brown, and 7511 signed various loan or other documents 21 which expressly stated that Medpoint was in the medical marijuana business and that, 22 under federal law, the production, marketing and sale of marijuana was and remains 23 illegal. See, e.g., Motion at Ex. C: 7511 Loan at 1 (DE 34-3) (“Marijuana is designated 24 as a Class One Controlled Substance by the US Federal Government and pursuant to 25 Federal Law is not approved for sale or distribution in the State of Arizona . . .”).

26 <sup>12</sup> See note 8, supra.

1 Jensen signed his Consulting Agreement with Medpoint to help it construct a medical 2 marijuana cultivation facility. All the Petitioning Creditors knew or should have known 3 there were serious possible criminal ramifications to Medpoint’s business relationships 4 with ANW and with marijuana products. Petitioning Creditors nonetheless decided to 5 contract with Medpoint to pursue potentially lucrative investments or lending profits, 6 and/or consulting fees, none of which could be realized but for Medpoint’s marijuana-7 related business affairs. The unclean hands defense arises from and applies to 8 Petitioning Creditors’ medical marijuana-related claims against Medpoint. Petitioning 9 Creditors’ hands are unclean and they cannot now seek relief from this Court.<sup>13</sup>

10 3. No Bad Faith

11 Under sub-sections 303(i)(1) and (2), the Court may award Medpoint a judgment 12 for its fees and/or costs associated with the successful Motion, or for proximate actual, 13 and/or punitive damages resulting from a bad faith involuntary petition.

14 The Court makes bad faith determinations by factual findings, judging the facts 15 against what a reasonable person would have done or believed. See In re Wavelength, 16 61 B.R. 614, 620 (9th Cir. BAP 1986). In doing so, the Court considers the totality of 17 the circumstances. Higgins v. Vortex Fishing Systems, Inc., 379 F.3d 701, 705 (9th Cir.
18 2004). In support of its request for a damages hearing, Medpoint alleges that Petitioning 19 Creditors filed the Petition “for the purpose of seizing control of the medical marijuana 20 license to permit continuing operations of a business that operates in clear violation of 21 federal law.” Motion at 11:22–24 (DE 34). Medpoint attaches a draft of a letter 22 containing a settlement offer from Petitioning Creditors’ counsel to ANW’s board 23 members. Motion at Ex. K: Pre-Litigation Demand (DE 34-11) (“Demand Letter”).

24 <sup>13</sup> Northbay, an unpublished opinion, reached a similar conclusion regarding a marijuana entity in California, 25 stating that: “While the sale of marijuana may be legal under certain circumstances in California, it is 26 unquestionably illegal under federal law. Appellants’ hands were unclean, as a matter of federal law.” *Northbay
Wellness Grp., Inc. v. Beyries*, No. C 11-06255 JSW, 2012 WL 4120409, at *4 (N.D. Cal. Sept. 18, 2012).
California also allows the production and sale of medical marijuana.

1 The Demand Letter is unsigned, and Petitioning Creditors deny that they ever actually 2 sent it.

3 Putting aside the question of the Demand Letter's admissibility under Federal 4 Rule of Evidence 408, the Court finds that the Demand Letter is evidence of Petitioning 5 Creditors' unclean hands but not of their bad faith. The Demand Letter is evidence that 6 Petitioning Creditors were involved in the medical marijuana business. The Court
7 declines to find that Petitioning Creditors acted in bad faith by preparing the Demand 8 Letter.

9 The viability of an involuntary chapter 7 petition filed against a debtor on account 10 of debts relating to state-licensed medical marijuana operations is a novel question of 11 law in this District. The Court does not find that Petitioning Creditors' acted 12 unreasonably in filing the Petition. The record shows that Medpoint is not and cannot 13 meet its ongoing financial obligations to numerous creditors, in amount and number 14 sufficient to justify an involuntary petition under section 303(b). The record before this 15 Court does not contain facts to support a finding of Petitioning Creditors' bad faith. As 16 the Ninth Circuit BAP has noted, "[n]ot every failed reason for filing an involuntary 17 petition amounts to 'bad faith.'" In re Macke Int'l Trade, Inc., 370 B.R. 236, 257 (9th 18 Cir. BAP 2007). Petitioning Creditors' unclean hands do not equate to a finding of their 19 bad faith in this instance. Finding no bad faith, there is no need for a hearing on 20 damages proximately caused by a filing that is not in bad faith.

21 Conclusion

22 Despite this Court's refusal to grant Petitioning Creditors' requested relief, they 23 still have other options for pursuing recourse against Medpoint. They may well have 24 state-law causes of action against Medpoint which might be enforced in state court. For 25 example, at his deposition, Downing seemingly admitted that Medpoint defaulted on or 26 breached various loan agreements and consulting agreements. The record also contains

1 facts which might support fraudulent transfer claims against Medpoint and/or BMF 2 under Arizona fraudulent transfer laws. Granting Medpoint's Motion will not give it a 3 windfall, because Petitioning Creditors still have the opportunity to pursue their claims 4 to hold Medpoint accountable in state court.

5 Arizona law is in conflict with the CSA. Arizona has chosen not to enforce the 6 CSA against businesses such as Medpoint. However, as a federal court, this Court must 7 adhere to federal law. Neither the alleged lack of enforcement funding nor the apparent 8 lack of political will to enforce the CSA alters the fact that a person engaged in 9 marijuana related business activities in Arizona is in violation of federal law.
10 Petitioning Creditors may themselves have also violated the CSA and attempted to profit 11 from those violations. At a minimum, they come to this Court with unclean hands. The 12 Court has neither the authority nor the will to enter an order for relief or endanger a 13 trustee who might be assigned to administer drug tainted assets for the benefit of 14 creditors who assumed the risk of doing business with an enterprise engaged in 15 violations of federal law.

16 Accordingly,

17 IT IS ORDERED that Medpoint's Motion is granted, and the Petition is 18 dismissed.

19 IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that Medpoint's request for a hearing on damages 20 is denied, as the Court will not grant Medpoint fees, costs, or damages.

21 DATED: April 6, 2015.
